For the most part, men's actions are not weighty things. They find their inspiration in some of the most unlikely places, and seldom, if ever, in the deciding regions of the will. If any kind of categorical statement is ever warranted, it is here, for men seem never to perform actions that are prompted by their own wants. Instead, actions are calculated to please or displease some other party. That other party is sometimes God, but more often, it is the men around us. This is so much the case that it is difficult to believe that men possess definite, deciding wills.

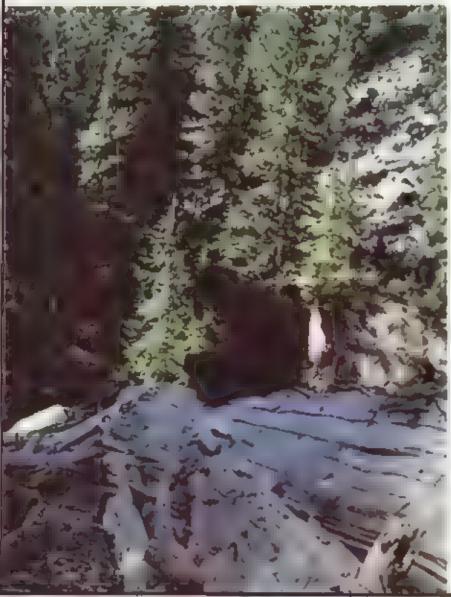

Some men have trouble finding certainty in the world around them It changes and moves so fast that they even doubt that it exists in the form they perceive These men begin to think that everything but their consciousness is disordered, and that if they are purposeful beings, the only way to realize and see that purpose is in themselves Naturally, if their existence is meaningful, then their actions must be meaningful, and for their actions to be meaningful, they must be motivated from the only source of order and meaning the definite deciding self-Since that self soon shows itself to be inconstant also, they conclude that life is meaningless

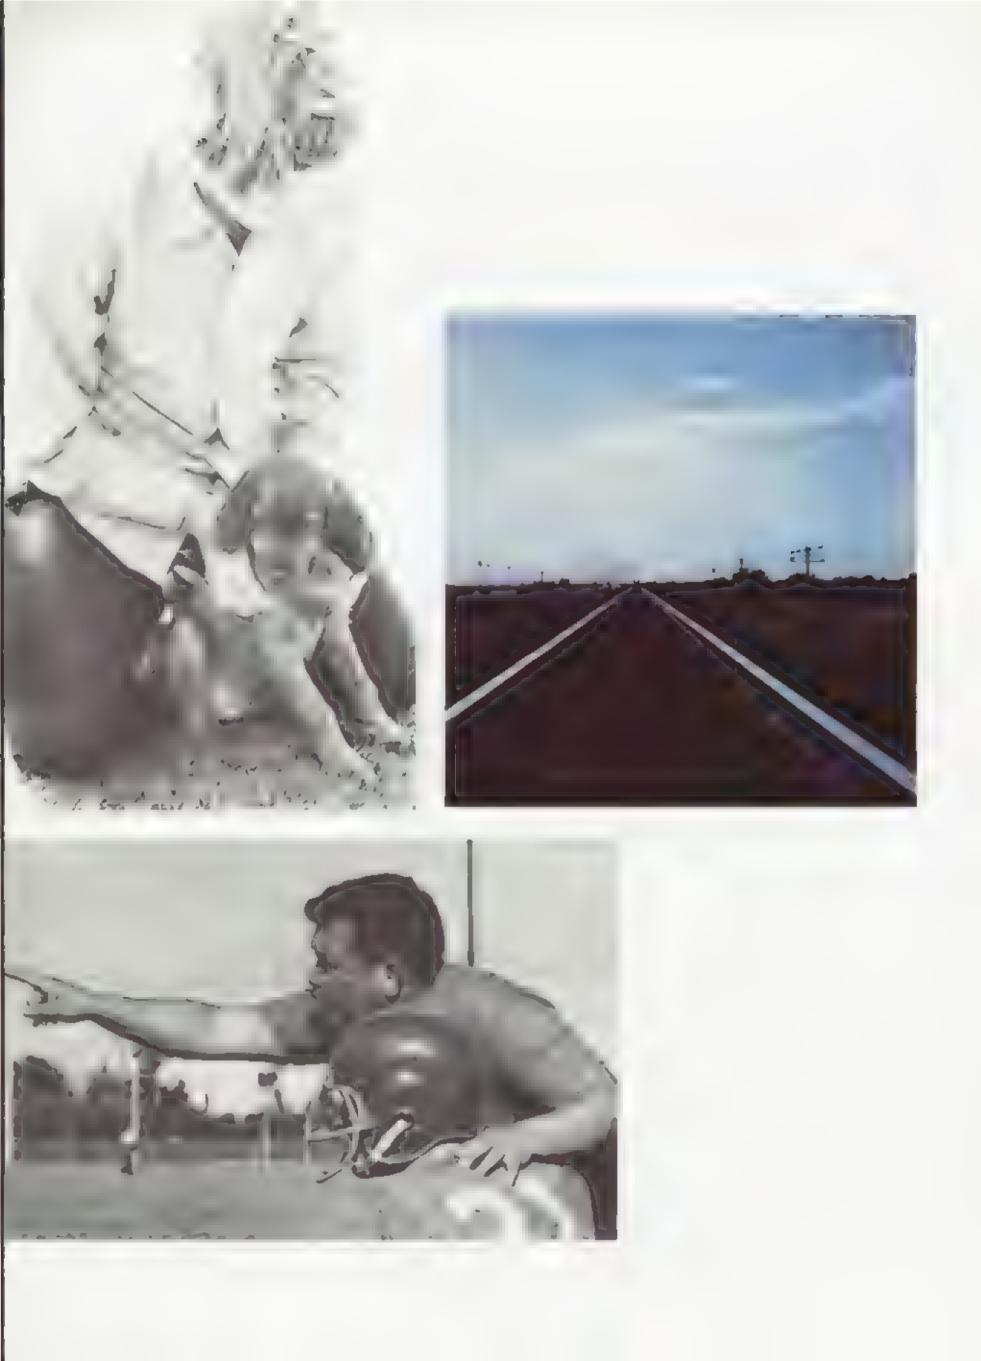

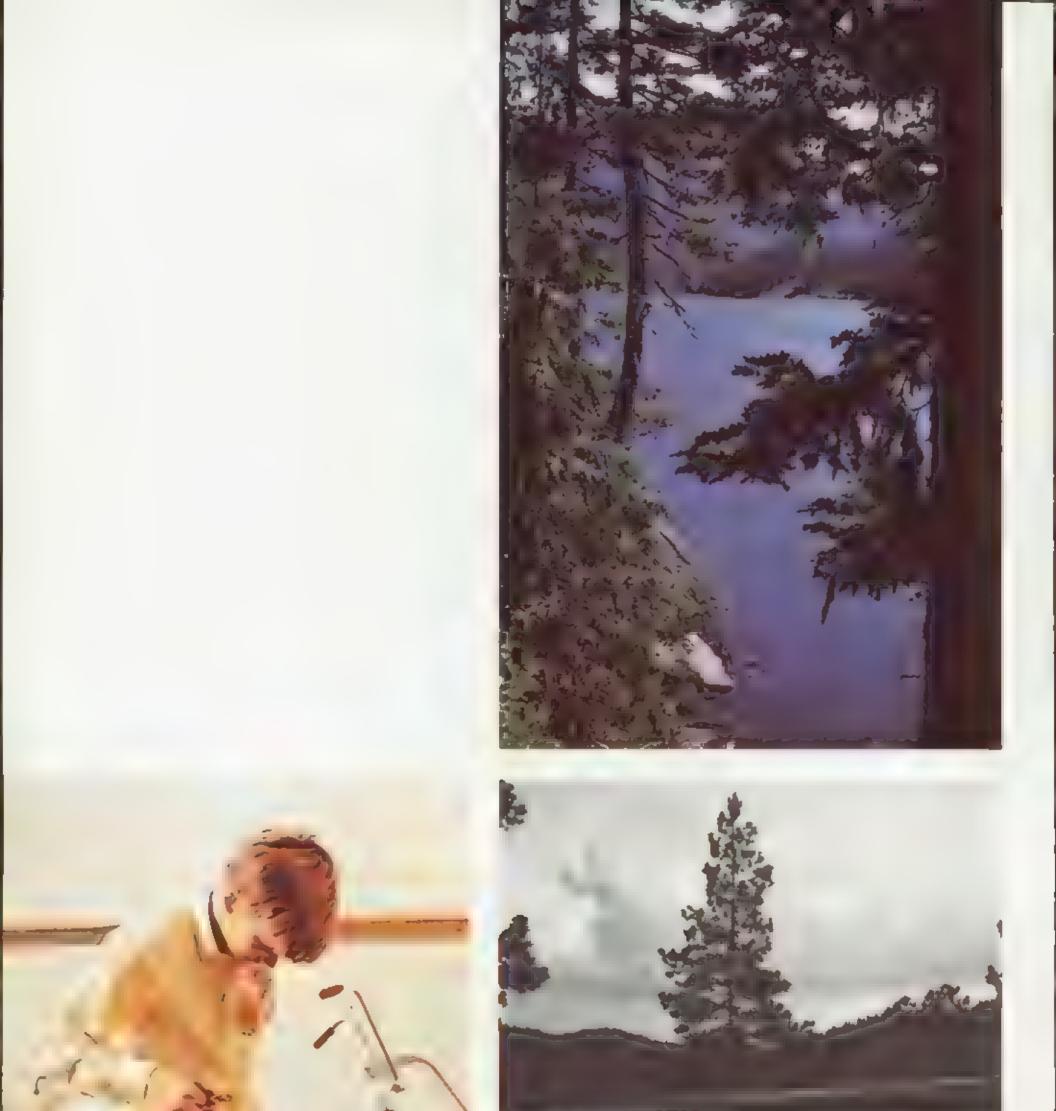

It can be conceded that men's actions are not important things. This being so, it is easy to conclude that men are mane creatures that they make no difference and that their lives are worthless. In a frenzied introspective state of mind, this conclusion is mevitable. One cannot speak for the overall meaning in life- it is true that without a God or some other absolute it seems to be a worthless stupid thing. However, by taking it. easy, and rejecting depressing logic, the whole question of meaning seems to dissolve in calm unhurried moments, we have all felt that it is good to be alive Beyond the realm of reason, men have a huge capacity to love life, to trust and believe, and to experience an ecstatic, all encompassing joy

summer fugitives resume the grind

Ken Heames from Brophy and Lou Ann Espit from Xavier directed Easter Seals projects. Though excitement for the movement seemed to have diminished, the group did several things with crippled children including transporting a great number of them to the homecoming game.

After students took time to renew acquaintances revive old jokes, re-form the patterns of school life adjust to new teachers, and put thoughts of warm nights, full time jobs, and California out of their minds. as could be expected, traditional activities began to occupy their time. Even though students found themselves in new classes with new teachers in a new year, the cycle of Brophy life unfolded much as it. always had Student Body VP, Mike Berens, and his reorganized rally committee immediately unleashed a barrage of signs, skits, B a on mountains, and announcements aimed at stimulating support of school activities. Student Council typically arqued. about the homecoming dance allotted finances, sent delegates to conventions, and discussed the worth of loyalty points. Brophy's speech team, due mainly to the talents of debaters Mangin and Guilleaume dominated awards statewide in publications, the yearbook staff was hit hard by procrastination, but managed to pull through. Early in September Student Council staged the traditional freshmen mixer. This year, like last year the affair was held at the swimming pool in the form of a party. The night was highlighted by Charlie Chaplin movies, hamburgers, and throngs of timid freshmen.

At night, school social life was dominated by games with crowded stands and sparse cheering and dances with ear-shattering music and lonely faces Autumn had come, and Brophy students found themselves carrying books, talking to girls in uniforms, attending meetings, practices and rehearsals. They found themselves fitting a mold. that two months before, they thought they would never fit.

Inconsistency and untimely mistakes were the two nemeses of the 1970 Brophy Varsity football team. The Broncos jumped off to two victories in their first two games, only to drop four of their last seven. With head coach Trevor Stinson, assisted by Michael Ryan, and neophyte John Chambers, and a strong contingent of talented but mexperienced players. Bronco supporters anticipated a good season.

Brophy opened its 1970 season against a form dable Central team, and came within one point of upsetting the Bobcats. Soon after. Brophy lost the services of senior running back Bob Winston The next two games against Sunnyslope and St. Mary's resulted in a combined output of forty points as Brophy's firepower began to manifest itself. Nick Ronan, Chuck Joyce, and Mark Supan provided a potent aerial threat, while John Likovich and Bill Simonson balanced the offense on the ground Brophy triumphed in both cases.

homecoming 1970 -phoenix centennial

Primed by a week of announcements, signs rallies, skits, etc., and engineered by Jeano Birdoes and Debbie Puplava, Homecoming 1970 happened. Alumni from everywhere returned to visit friends and view the game, which Brophy won 27.0 After the teams had retreated to the locker rooms, two floats were wheeled past the audience. The Freshmen-Senior float was a wagon with a huge sign saying "Victory or Bust printed on its side. The Sophomore-Junior float depicted the contrast between 1970 and 1870 with little cardboard scenes. Once the floats were gone, master of ceremonies Torn Rohrbacher ntroduced the candidates and their escorts. After a little suspense, the envelope was finally torn and Kate Stevens was proclaimed gueen. When the initial congratulations and excitement passed away, there was the dance. Held in Brophy gym. the affair featured a well known Phoenix band the Edlectic Mouse, playing a blend of rock and baroque jazz. People talked, danced, or simply satand listened to the music until Homecoming 1970 ended at 12 30 A M

Later in the season, the offense lost its drive, and the defense was forced to take up the slack. In two league games, the offense failed to move and the team lost to Flagstaff and Glendale. The defense, led by Bob McKeever and Tim Wesley yielded a little over twelve points per game. Due to inopportune offensive miscues, and obviously stronger teams, such as Cortez and Moon Valley Brophy's early good showing slid into a disappointing four and five season.

The Brophy Junior Varsity was a bright spot. The JV's compiled a six-one one record, losing to Moon Valley and tying Prescott. Depth in running back positions was the key to their success. JV coach. Fred Campisano managed his fourth winning season in as many years of coaching.

The J V offensive machine was an awesome weapon, wielded for the most part, by quarterback Pete Blake Brophy's potent ground attack included three Juniors, Rich King, Bryan Murphy, and Glen King who was voted most valuable offensive back. The defense played it rough too, with such men as Bayham O Connor, Pardi, and Likovich. Along with Glen King's award, Rick Birdoes took most valuable offensive lineman, while defense awards went to Mark Herring lineman, and Pat Coughlin, back. Guys and Dolls," a musical fable of Broadway, was presented by the drama departments of Brophy and Xavier as the faproduction of 1970. This venture was somewhat risky for Mr. John Kunkel and Mr. Michael Fitzpatrick, S.J., were directing their first play and also, this musical was the first ever performed in the fall season at Brophy Besides these innate difficulties, the cast encountered others when rehearsal began personal ty conflicts and lack of time, efficiency, and, seemingly talent. However, by the time the actual performances were readied, most of these obstacles had been surmounted. "Guys and Dolls, captured the spirit of New York's underworld of the 1930's through fast paced dialogue, appealing characters, and music of many kinds. Brophy's production was headed by four superbilead performances. Irene Mudgett as the naive scatter. brained chorus girl, Adelaide. Nick Seivert as Nathan Detroit. Adelaide's boyfriend and runner of the oldest established permanently floating crap game in New York. Pam Schadle as Sarah Brown, a Salvation Army worker bent on converting Broadway, and Mike Mack playing a smooth big time gambler and Sarah's unlikely lover. Sky Masterson, Many of the supporting players did just as well-particularly Jeff Ul man in the role of Arvide Sarah's grandfather. The Jin horns, Bill Grove. Mike McSharie, and Joe Prassa brought a livery spirit to the show while At Garbagnati's Big Jule and Carol Richard's General Cartwright were also entertaining

Music is often the most enjoyable aspect of a play, and "Guys and Dolls" provided plenty Especially worth noting are "Sit Down You're Rocking the Boat," a spiritual sung by almost the entire cast. "More I Cannot Wish You," a ballad delivered by the strong voice of Jeff Ullman, "A Bushel and a Peck," a chorus number typical of a shoddy night club, and "Luck Be a Lady,' a song expressing the tensity of the crap game in the sewer. Attractive sets, realistic costumes and an able lighting job all complemented the performances "Guys and Dolls" ran three consecutive nights. #### rally clan loses early verve; musical occasions fall climax

The enthusiasm generated by homecoming and a string of inventive rally committee gags began to wane late in October. A general tenor of lethargy pervaded the school. The end of the first grading period was imminent and students started doing some serious worrying. Clever announcements and appeals for dances and games took on the status of monotonous drones. The football team finished its season, but most failed to note its passing During the second week in November a dance was staged a'la 1950 in Xavier Hal Preceded by a week of well planned intercom skits and noontime platter playings, the dance served to infuse a new clan into the degenerate humor of the school. At about this time. Student Council began to gather itself around a definite effort to abolish loyalty points. The proponents of the movement tried four different constitutions channels before they succeeded in a simple motion that repealed the loyalty point section of the by-laws During this period. The fall reached a sort of late climax during "Guys and Dolls" The play provided a welcome relief from the familiar riginarole of events and caused a great number of people to shed their care less attitudes. ## loyalty points abolished, food drive earns $4100

A welcome thanksgiving holiday quickly passed and lifty seniors took two days' worth of socks and supplies into the Brophy bus and retreated to the Casa. The atmosphere of the forty eight hour communal rest period was totally relaxed, a sharp contrast to the regimented class scheduling. Small discussion groups and informal liturgy created an environment most conducive to individual encounter and discovery of mendships, but this can't really be dealt with on paper. A few of Student Council's members outshined the organization as a whole early in the winter, carrying on the intramural basketball program and the Christmas food drive Bob Smart and his cohorts executed a Brophy-Xavier basketball game and an "Alpha Falpha" picnic to raise funds for the drive, and the student body at large brought thousands of cans of food to provide St. Mary's Food Bank with $4100 worth of food for their holiday charity endeavors. Varsity basketball surprised people early in the winter, what was expected to be a second-rate losing group suddenly transformed itself into a hustling, winning, cohesive unit, a definite rarity on the Brophy basketball scene. Nine seniors brought a new depth to the squad, no "superstars" were evident, and a core of six to eight men consistently performed on the court Bernie LeBeau led early scoring for the Broncos averaging 24 points per game, and Mike Paytas provided superb ball-handling as he apparently strove for the state record in assists, averaging ten of them per game. In addition to LeBeau Joe Jahn, Gus Rath, and Terry Hoerner were the principal rebounders, with junior Dave Mertz giving more than occasional assistance. Utilizing an effective full-court press and a hustling scrambling defense, the squad arrived at a first place ranking in their division with a 4-1 overall record before the Christmas Invitational Tournament Don Schmidli coached the Broncs as they rapidly converted their old image of a sluggish, selfish group of individuals into one of winning cooperation

basketball championship effort surprises students

As the winter progressed, the varsity basketball team continued to prosper, though they had definitely discovered that maintaining a championship drive was far more difficult than initiating one. They began 1971 with a quick victory over St. Mary's, totally outclassing them in an uneventful contest. Brophy has never returned from Flagstaff with a basketball victory and 71 proved no exception - this season though, the conquest couldn't be blamed on Thome town reffing Bemoaning the injury of Mike Paytas a week earlier, the Brones shot and rebounded fazily to succumb to a hustling Flagstaff team. With Paytas once again principal ball handler and engineer of the offense. Brophy conquered Paradise Valley Moon Valley and Cortex successively (each posed only a momentary threat as the Broncs, apparently a second half ball club, disposed of them all with late and powerful drives. Before an enthused and enlarged group of followers, the winning Brophy five chakenged division leader Prescott, and perhaps surprised them somewhat, but were defeated by an overpoweringly fall rebounding and shooting attack in the final minutes. A dispirited and lacklustre performance four days later netted Brophy a loss to Sunnyslope, furthering the Bronco record to 11.6. 7-3 in the division. Brophy basketball had apparently gelled for a time, as Bernie LeBeau continued to excel and John Heiple found his mark more and more often but midseason contests proved that the Broncos could be as unpredictable as they were capable

The source of the JV's power could perhaps best be described as an amazing kind of basketball intelligence on the court, a quick pass, a well-executed pick, a lightning fake, and a precise shot fell effortlessly together for another two points. With nine of the twelve varsity positions vacant. in the fall of '71' including the first five, the JV's provenblend of talent and teamwork could be utilized to a definite advantage

class exemptions prove controversial endeavors

According to the calendar, the Phoenix winter was on the wane, but early in January a paralyzing cold fell over the valley and lingered for a week. Temperatures dropped radically, the number of bikes in the bike-racks diminished, frosted cars rolled warily over ice patches in the north parking lot. Classes and activities moved at a trickling ebb, and people suspended all but the most necessary action.

When the semester exams arrived the air had become warm and again, the school was alive. In an experiment devised to give deserving students extra free time and to encourage scholastic initiative, those with superior grade averages were exempted from certain exams and allowed to dispense with class during the repetition period. The venture proved quite worthwhile as it gave many a chance to catch up on old assignments, prepare for the coming semester, and enjoy friends or the weather. For the less fortunate examinations arrived after the inevitable tension and cramming. The semester holiday followed insipid short, almost non existent. The Brophy community breathed quickly, concentrated rest from five taxing months into one day and then launched anew into the weiting arms of the second semester.

That week's Thursday, Jan. 21, the Round-Up came out. The issue committed even more space to opinion. and interest articles, while it continued to de-emphasize its news page. Mr. Fitzpatrick, S.J. completed his editorial appraising the inadequate realization of Brophy's handbook objectives. Tom Bell commented on the inevitability of College, and Pat O Reilly rebutted reaction to the construction crew's performance on the final night of "Guys and Dolls" After soliciting for three months, the editors of the Tower began to collect their material and construct the literary magazine. In late January, a profuse amount of amateur writing had been condensed into the rudiments of a publication. Meanwhile, Fr. Carroll, S.J., interjected a short announcement reincarnating the "noon mass". Response was sufficient to warrant further announcements and masses. Despite the Seniors' eviction from the gym homeroom 4D managed to defeat the Juniors handily in intramural basketball championships Seniors and Juniors traded places in Theology classes and study halls, respectively, and Senior Government metamorphosed into Sociology Schedules shifted in all directions, creating an administrative nightmare. Semester classes ended, other semester classes began. Music Survey, Matrix Algebra, Trigonometry, Analytic Geometry, Speech, and Driver's Education Selected Chemistry students traded their Brophy class for a similar one at Xavier, and the General Brophy-Xavier exchange grew more extensive

The spring began somewhat unobtrusively. After the first frightening days, normal people continued in the normal patterns of normal school life. Seniors began receiving acceptance notices, and scattered symptoms of the famed Senioritis" evidenced themselves Juniors Sophomores, and Freshmen remained ingrained in the cycle of life prevalent at Brophy, confident of their imminent return. For the most part, the distinction between the winter and the spring was obscure. Events in one genre only appeared different from those in the other, they were of the same spirit

Without the pressure of a preseason number one rating, the Brophy varsity baseball players put together a spirited confident team. The squad consisted of 18 man, of which nine were returning varsity lettermen. Mr. Dan Whitehead, once again head varsity baseball coach, employed less stringent preparation tactics hoping the team would peak in midseason. The schedule was 19 games long, and only one game was outside league competition

The Brophy varsity nine displayed strong hitting and pitching, but lacked proper timing and coordination as a defensive unit. Though the starting nine remained somewhat constant throughout the year, coach Whitehead found himself juggling men at the catcher and pitcher positions. Pitching duties fell to Seniors Jeano Birdoes, Phil Hirshberg, Jim Mahoney John O Connor, and Junior Nick Renan, At the other end of the battery John Likovich, Rick Birdoes, and Bob Wesolowski shared most of the playing time. The infield was composed almost entirely of returning lettermen, first baseman Rick Richardson, shortstop Steve Novak and third baseman Jim Mahoney A newcomer, Bill Itule, played second base Peter Geis. Bob Winston, Phil Hirshberg, and Mike Stefaniak staffed the outlield

frosh swarm tryouts; mr. lanigan heads ju's

John P Lanigan, exercising what was dubbed "marine-like discipline" by his troops, made his Brophy coaching debut during the 1970 '71 school year. His spring endeavors included shaping twenty unpracticed young men into a cohesive hustling baseball team. Early in the season John Abney emerged as a top infielder as well as a consistent hitter and he and Tom Novak displayed the speed on the basepaths that made Lanigan call the JV's 'a running team." Dave Geare John Quick, and Charlie Gaughan constituted the pitching staff. Joe Foley and Pete Blake spearheaded the team's offense with "real power hitting," while Pete Boyle and Jim Ayers turned in excellent infield performances.

For the Freshmen perhaps it is just as well that no forecasts were made, for it is nearly impossible to approximate the degree of success a coach will enjoy in taking an army of enthusiastic frosh and creating a smooth, coordinated team of them. The large turnout and great enthusiasm were definite assets coach Munoz possessed the ability to inspire hustle and skill, and the courage to predict "a winning season."

Strong, consistent output by Junior members of the track squad keyed the performance of the 1971 team. Head coach Mickey Ryan admitted that the season was primarily a building one and proceeded to rely heavily on a talented contigent of Junior runners, jumpers, and heavers. In fact except for top distance man 9ob Smart, all important positions were occupied by Juniors, and still another Junior, Bill Dunn, stood ready to fill the shoes of 8ob Smart.

As the season progressed individual members of the team began to assert themselves in their respective events. With Mr. Michael Klein assisting as coach of the distance runners. Mr. Fred Campisano coaching the weightmen, and Fr. Mark McConville, S.J., handling the hurdlers, everyone received competent, particularized help in his own event. The following men distinguished themselves in the events mentioned. Mark Suparipole vault and high jump, Jim Hopkins-high hurdles, Neal Keane low hurdles, broad jump and high jump, Jack Lally-quarter mile, low hurdles and mile relay, Mark Landis-mile relay, and Bob Smart-mile two-mile and half mile.

Resuscitating from a 18-1 win-loss record last spring the golf team began the 1971 season with copious confidence. Boasting an in-depth power and strong individual performers, the successful 1970 team returned virtually intact. In fact, it seemed to have lost no integral part, consistent golfers Mike Paytas and Steve Lyding returned to the turf much improved to aid top notch golfers. Bernie Le Beau and Tom Lawfess.

Tennis coach Fr. George Carroll, S.J., combined JV varsity forces and compiled a constantly rejuvenated varsity "ladder." Sophomores Stewart Keller and Mark Kunde, and tone Junior Greg. Hill continually monopolized the top ladder positions, while a host of others from the Sophomore-Freshman dominated team provided ample support. With an impressive combination of individual and group power, Brophy was assured a top performance in state competition.

The 1971 swimming outlook was optimistic also Brian and Kevin Galfagher. John Grucky John Hankerson, and Tim Sawdey all played important parts in 1970's statewide second place. All returned in Grucky and the Gallaghers the team possessed a consistent free style medley and breast stroke attack which left many predicting a state swimming championship.

'tartuffe' directors experiment with shared roles

Brophy and Xavier students performed Tartuffe on March 5.6 and 7. The play is a 17th century satire on hypocrisy written by Jean-Baptiste Moliere. Tartuffe is a scheming hypocrite who misles his way into Organ's household and eventually steads his money and seduces his wife all the while pretending unselfishness and piety.

Although the situation caused some difficulty in rehearsal, roles were shared in several cases by two people. Steve Armstrong played the central character Orgon, mixing just the right amounts of humor and melodrama. Ken Heames and Pat O Reilly handled the title role well, both giving Tartuffe the proper deceit and cunning. Dorine the seductive bitch, was played by Brigid Welch and Kathy Stark, while Mary Francis Walsh played a ranting self-important Mme. Pernelle with obvious aptitude.

Mr John Kunkel directed Tartuffe and whether the credit can be said to be his or not, the play was a definite promination on the High School drama scene

During February, the never-ending pursuit for a Brophy more beautiful transcended mere elimination of litter from the campus, a more positive project took root as groundskeepers punched holes in East yard asphalt and corked them with trees. During peak sunshine hours, the trees witnessed the flawless execution of Jim-Raney's volleyball program, one phase of a spring intramural repertoire that included track swimming, and tennis. The Raily Committee's final bus trip escorted seventy Brophy-Xavier enthusiasts to a losing basketball effort against Prescott. The Broncos won their next few games. though, including Moon Valley and Paradise Valley to qualify for the Skyline Division playoffs but the team's peculiar cyclic performance dipped into one of its troughs just in time, and Brophy eliminated itself from contention in a disheartening season finale against St. Mary's Once again, the gymnasium became available for general student use after organized basketballs four-month monopoly

Brophy student government appeared quite frivolous in 1971 During student council meetings, where ASBCP business was conducted, a constant joking chatter seemed to indicate that nothing was really accomplished, and the executive council members seamed satisfied to proudly exhibit their positions on college application forms. Between ludicrous motions for reinstatement of fire drills, and removal of delegates who were asphyxiating one another, over $4100 worth of food was collected for charity dining rooms, a couple of thousand more dollars was collected for Easter Sea s, and numerous dances, social affairs, and intramural programs were engineered for the benefit of the students themselves. The immature periods of nonproductivity were often aggravating, and the lack of student power? rendered the organization worthless for some, but within its own scope. Brophy student council was worthwhile in achieving those goals for which it was designed it was a student activities coordinating group, which could expedite communication with the administration, and claimed nothing more. After McKeever stopped hurling accusations, and after Coffey stopped making excuses and Donohoe stopped calling for divisions of the house all those people had actually been helped, and the students had even enjoyed themselves in doing it

block club supplies fresh pizza; hungry mobs masticate eagerly

On the first of March, a relatively dormant Block Club sprang to life in the start of a series of money-making ventures a pizza sale Inherently, the pizza sale was quite unglamorous, but with the Mullen food machine closed down temporarily and fresh pizza being whisked in every five minutes, the sales were brisk indeed. Proceeds from the Block Club efforts launched a new scholarship drive for needy incoming athletes. The social scene floundered throughout the spring - the absence of evening ath etic events made it rather difficulty to gather a significant number of Brophy-Xavier people for affairs. The Mardi Gras dance, one attempted gathering bombed miserably with only B handful of masqueraded students in attendance. Two student teachers appeared on campus during second semester, and were hardly noticed among the sluggish imperceptivity of school attendance Mr Dan Lentz worked under Fr. Naucke, as teacher of advanced speech and assistant in the forensics program, and Mr. Philip Hall instructed World History under the direction of Donald Schmidle Once they overcame the expected nervous self consciousness and obtained control of their classes, both ASU students gained the valuable teaching experience they sought. Spring seemed to pass quite rapidly, after the car washes, bake sales fine arts projects, term papers, and plays had dissolved, the heat set in and summer appeared to commence. A vexing perplexity seemed to exist however. May seemed like summer, and classes were all the more unbearable After the seniors endured the traditional commencement exercises. Brophy remained vacant until September

the party is over; seniors confounded

In some way or another, I was always very active. I played sports and I studied, I had loose acquaintances scattered all over campus. I harboured one romance after another, I danced, I cheere to delive I angled to supposed deep monve satisfy. I all shed he into six much juxes I was depressed. I was happy. After what seems afternately like a long and a short time, after this tremendous amount of time and energy, I should have some strong reaction to vent. I should be able to discrurse elegantly on each and every fallet of the school Unfortunately except for a rather normal complacent, positive feeling that I have towards Brophy, I am without any opinion.

I usually think of it as just a good or bad day, not a good or bad four years

Now, after four years, I think I am better versed in how to appear like someone or something than in how to be that thing. Necessity has taught me the art of pretense, and I have employed it to full and equal advantage in all my affairs at school, social and academic.

Considering the condition of our world. Brophy was an experience worth remembering Contemplating the outcome of my four years here. I fee thave lost myself in a vacuum I can never escape.

I regret to say that, though I have been here from the start. I have yet to find myself

I kept asking myself, "When am I going to get out of this place?" Then as my senior year comes along 1 ask myself, "Why did I waste these years as I did?"

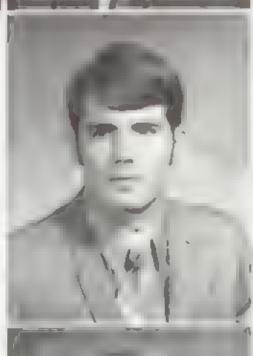

The education I received has been questionable, as it seems that our year got all the new teachers who were either asked to leave the next year, or fired

Brophy has done something for me. Whether it was good or bad, tis there.

I have seen many kinds of attitudes and personalities in my friends, one of these being the cynic who has nothing good to say about anything. Opposing him is the Brophy right or wrong man who puts his school before God and country.

I don't think I will ever regret coming here, if not because of the school, because of the people

I am now sick of this school only because I can't wait to go to the college of my choice

I have done what I could but not always what I should I am regretful but I would also dare to say I am

I came in and went out with the same viewpoint

juniors humble seniors in first all-star struggle

Where am I going to go now? What college will I go to? Wherever it is, I think I'm ready

The only thing was that I got too involved in sports and I never had enough time to participate in other activities

One regret of mine is that I didn't go out for many sports.

Brophy was something secure, a place oblivious to the pains and evils of the outside world

I was drafted into the Brophy society at the beginning of my Sophomore year because of circumstances beyond my control. Much to my surprise it turned out to be good.

Brophy has been a way of life, a compilation of experiences that after four years, it is well worth remembering and returning to for a nostalgic glimpse

It seems to have taken four long years for the jocks and the intellectuals and the rest of us guys that fell somewhere in between to learn how to get along with each other, but I guess that it's really too late now

Brophy gives you the chance and the choice. The rest is up to the individual

It's remarkable how the attitude of a school can change so drastically from year to year. One year the buildings of the school will shake with ispirit, the next year the cheerleaders will be boold and rid duied, shift true that the attitudes and actions of the students make the school? Brophy used to be together. Brophy used to support its teams, but that since in lanymore, But I can remember a few years ago, the paper accusing the school of apathy, so I guess it will change again.

Relatives recommended the place from what I learn from friends. Brophy's somewhat antiquated regulations do not develop character. Rather, they hinder creative development.

I don't find the criticism of Brophy's disciplinary system as istiffing iparticularly valid there are no requiations loutside of state obscenity, aws, placed on student expression, and our disciplinary directives merely provide a framework within which we can function in somewhat civilized fashion

seniors refuse time-honored tradition; horn of plenty becomes casual dance

Just the other day a certain individual asked me, "Why do you stay at Brophy when you can enroll at Central for only a few dollars and possibly get a better education?" You know it's funny. I really couldn't answer that question precisely

I have learned to appreciate life the way it is, and not to expect more than is there

It's nice to think back on all the fun and bad times I had, but everything comes to a close If I had my choice to come back and go through the four years again, I would refuse it

When I first came to Brophy, actually for my first three years, I was rebellious about going here. If the choice had been given to me, I would never have seen this place. That is why I never participated in anything. I guess it is better for me, because if I had gone to a public school, I would have gone crazy with the new leniency, and would have lost complete control of myself—think the school is basiculty good, but I fit is the stude, its full of propagated like any public school. My past years at Brophy, I am sorry to say, have been a total loss to me. I was thoroughly disillusioned when I came here and I received nothing from any sort of unusual standards set up by the school. I frankly can't see any differences between a normal public school and Brophy

On a personal plane, the Brophy student, it seemed to me, often suffered from a rather shaky self-image, I know so many that were individually warm and friendly but became overly conscious of their smallest faults. when among additional students I'm really sorry so many opportunities for personal friendships were passed up because of some pointless "mobpsychology "

I'm glad I had the opportunity to grow and learn at Brophy, and I will take it with me wherever I go

Though at times I've felt real affection for the school Brophy was never more than a place to enjoy people 1. liked, satisfy a few interests, a source of security, and a place to go every day

My main criticism of Brophy would be its letting two of my previous math teachers teach

The academic program is excellent, but there still is much room for improvement. I do not agree with the philosophy of many of the coaches because they tend to dehumanize students sometimes

With God behind the school and me, my hopes of seeing it twenty years from now are a fact and a pleasure.

On looking back on my four years at Brophy, I feet only one regret. I'm leaving. Looking back, I still laugh at some of the squirreliest things done in the valley. The Brophy Mountain, the senior cheering section, and some great fights with Sunnyslope. These things made my years at Brophy some of the best, and I just hope that in the future, the tradition of the highest-class school in the state will remain with Brophy And by the way, the teaching ain't too bad neither

As a freshman, high school seemed like it would last forever But now, as a senior, the past four years seemed like four months

I can't say I have any true love for this school, but at the same time, I don't think I can say I really hate it. Or can I?

Where else but at Brophy do teachers show so much concern as to call your house, even though you had your parents call when you were ill? Where else but at Brophy do you get a free haircut and shave when it is needed?

It was just one hell of an experience

I am damn glad this yearbook is finished. There are two things that accrue directly from an immersion in inches, squares, and dimensions. The first is an acute sense of manity, the second is a sensation of futility. Somehow one begins to believe he will never emerge from these petty concerns into an easier less pressured state, that he will be forever enshrined with a triplicate a print, and a copy block. This is not the case. The yearbook does end, it really does. Even so I have to tell myself the book is finished and spring is here. I cant't believe it

"Now if Christ is preached as raised from the dead, how can some of you say there is no resurrection from the dead? But if there is no resurrection from the dead, then Christ has not been raised, then our preaching is in vain . . . If for this life only we have hoped for Christ we are of all men most to be pitied.
